TELEGRAMS FROM HARRISBURGH.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

HARRISBURGH, Monday, June 29.

Throughout the day our forces have held a position beyond the Harrisburgh fortifications, in anticipation of the enemy's advance. The rebels have not shown an inclination to make an attack. This morning a few shots were exchanged between the rebel and our own pickets, and subsequently our men practiced with the mounted guns in order to get the range.

The opinion is gaining credence that the rebels are maneuvering to take Harrisburgh by a flank movement. The report that they have a pontoon train six miles this side of Columbia, however, is somewhat doubted.

It has been agreed that the tap of the Court-house bell shall be the signal for men to assemble at the bridge, and place themselves under military orders.

A gentleman just escaped from the rebel lines at Chambersburgh, reports the rebel column moving eastward to number 37,000, accompanied by one hundred and four pieces of artillery. Gen. Lee, with his Staff officers, were in Chambersburgh last Saturday.

Thirty-three prisoners, captured at Mount Union, were brought into town this morning.

Gen. STUART has been appointed to assume command of the cavalry forces in this Department.

Another order has been issued by the rebel Gen. EWELL, dated June 22, relative to the restrictions enjoined upon his army and the citizens of the country through which the rebels pass. He urges that a ready acquiescence with the demands of the military authorities will serve greatly to lessen the sigors of war.

It was confidently believed this morning that the enemy would commence an attack to-day. In all probability, to-morrow or next day will develop his intended movements. Possibly Lee may contemplate the capture of Baltimore, and consider Harrisburgh of secondary importance.

A proclamation has been issued by Mayor KEAMPER, appealing to the patriotism of the citizens to respond with proper spirit to the following letter from the Major-General commanding. He says: "Let every man willing to cross the river report himself as soon as possible, at my office this evening."

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE SUSQUEHANNA, HARRISBURGH, June 29, 1863.

SIR: The Major-General Commanding requests that you forward three hundred men, to work on the defences of Harrisburgh. They will report to Capt. WEBBER, Chief Engineer of this Department, on the south side of the Susquehanna River. It is hoped that the citizens will respond at once to this call. The time has arrived for action.

I am, Sir, very respectfully, your ob't serv't,
JNO. G. SEPULKI, Major and A. A. G.

Hon. A. L. ROBINSON, Mayor of Harrisburgh.

WALTER MCNAIR, Esq., has been appointed Aid to Gen. COWAN, with the rank of Major, and we are obliged to him for favors. WHIT.

HARRISBURGH, Penn., Monday, June 29.

Information was received by the authorities this morning, which they consider perfectly reliable, that thirty-seven thousand rebel troops had passed through Chambersburgh up to Saturday, together with one hundred and four pieces of artillery.

Gen. LEE was at Chambersburgh with his Staff on Saturday.

The indications are that a strong effort will be made to obtain a foothold on this side of the river.

The rebels have remained apparently inactive in our front up to the present time.

HARRISBURGH, Monday, June 29—1½ P. M.

Two refugees have just arrived here by the Pittsburgh mail route, who left Chambersburgh on Saturday evening.

They state that at 11 o'clock on Saturday morning Gen. LEE, in company with Gens. LONGSTREET and A. P. HILL, with their Staffs and escorts, left Chambersburgh, taking the Baltimore Pike, in the direction of Gettysburgh.

When the refugees left, Gen. HILL's corps was passing through the town, taking the road Gen. LEE went out on.

The only rebel troops that passed through Chambersburgh, coming in this direction, were those of Gen. ROSER' and Gen. JOHNSON's divisions attached to the corps of Gen. EWELL.

HARRISBURGH, Monday, June 29.

Forty-two rebel prisoners, including a Major and Lieutenant, were sent to Philadelphia for safe keeping to-day. They are the advanceguard of the post week.

A citizen of Carlisle, who left that place at 11 o'clock last night, arrived here to-day. He states that the barracks are occupied by 7,000 men; besides a brigade is encamped at each end of the town. He left there on Saturday for Gettysburgh, where LONGSTREET's headquarters are now established. HILL's corps was between Carlisle and Chambersburgh; while ARNSTRONG's corps (division?) was at Chambersburgh on Friday.

This is the latest information received here in regard to the position of the main body of Lee's army.

The city was considerably excited late this afternoon by artillery firing in front. When the truth was ascertained, it was found that our men were shelling the woods where a rebel picket had been established.

The enemy have shown no disposition to advance to-day.

Gen. COWAN to-day received the following information from York from a source which he considers perfectly reliable.

The rebel forces at York are 15,000 strong, under Gen. EARLY, who has issued an order levying a contribution of $150,000, 150 barrels of flour, 50,000 pounds of beef, 50 bags of coffee, and large quantities of sugar and groceries. He has given them 20 hours to comply with his wishes. Men of Pennsylvania, you see a foretaste of the fate reserved for you.

The rebel troops which were at Wrightsville, opposite Columbia, fell back to York to-day.

JOHNSON, with 6,000 troops of all arms, is believed to be 12 miles from Bloody Run, and advancing.

HARRISBURGH, Monday, June 29—Midnight.

On the Northern Central Railroad six bridges have been burned between Goldsborough and York, a distance of sixteen miles.

Great anxiety is felt for the safety of the Pennsylvania railroad. The enemy's movements show that they are endeavoring to reach it thirty or forty miles west of this place.

Everything is quiet. Troops are rapidly arriving for the defense of the capital.

TELEGRAMS FROM COLUMBIA, PENN.

COLUMBIA, Penn., Monday, June 29—9 P. M.

Seven citizens, who went out under a flag of truce, have just returned across the river from Wrightsville.

The rebels evacuated Wrightsville at 10 o'clock this morning, and commenced moving toward York.

The rebels respected all private property, and did not interfere with the canal.

The rebel troops arrived at the bridge yesterday, with artillery, a few minutes after our troops crossed over.

Lieut.-Col. SMYRES and twenty of the Twentieth Pennsylvania regiment were captured in the town.

The rebels say they fired forty rounds of artillery, and lost one column observed passing down the town.

The rebels stated they had burned the bridge alone.

Yesterday the rebels poured into the town from all directions. They belonged to Gen. GORDON's division, which is attached to the army corps of Gen. EARLY.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, June 29.

A special dispatch to the Press is as follows:

COLUMBIA, Penn., Monday, June 29.

The enemy has retired to the line of the Northern Central Railroad.

The bridge over the Susquehanna at this point was totally destroyed. It was valued at $150,000.

All is quiet now, and the excitement is subsiding.

There is no enemy opposite Peach Bottom, a place below here on the river.

THE FIGHT AT COLUMBIA BRIDGE.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, June 29—4½ P. M.

In the fight at the Columbia Bridge, several companies of Col. TWEEDALE's Custom-house regiment were captured by the rebels.

THE REBEL OCCUPATION OF YORK.

HARRISBURGH, Monday, June 29.

The American has the following information from York, Penn.:

"The rebels were in full occupation yesterday. It is estimated that the full force in the county was not less than 10,000. Gen. EARLY had his headquarters in York, with 3,000 men and seven pieces of artillery. Gen. GORDON was encamped outside the town yesterday with 2,500 men and 7 pieces of artillery. The rebels yesterday demanded of the town authorities the following contributions: $100,000 in United States Treasury notes, 200 bbls. of flour, 40,000 pounds of fresh beef, 30,000 bushels of corn, 1,000 pairs of shoes, 1,000 pairs of stockings and 1,000 coats and caps, beside various other articles, amounting in the value to not less than $150,000. The delivery of the money and these stores was required at noon to-day, or in case of failure the rebels would help themselves, and the people were notified that they must take the consequences.

TELEGRAMS FROM PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, June 29.

Business is almost entirely suspended in all its departments.

The receipts of produce by the Pennsylvania Railroad have ceased.

There was no meeting of the Board of Brokers this forenoon, and there is quite a panic among the outside dealers. The prices of Stocks have declined 5 per cent.

The Corn Exchange raised five companies this morning.

The coal dealers held a meeting this forenoon, and resolved to close their collieries till the crisis has passed, and to enable the miners to volunteer.

The merchants have resolved to raise a million of dollars. All the stores are to be closed, and the men employed in them forwarded for the defence of the city and the State. The men who leave their employment are to be paid their usual salary during their absence.

Telegraphic communication between Harrisburgh and Pittsburgh is still perfect.

There is no truth in the rumored capture of Harrisburgh by the rebels.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, June 29.

The Board of Brokers to-day raised $25,000, to be divided among 500 men who may enlist for the emergency.

A resolution was also adopted to adjourn at 2 o'clock every afternoon, to give members an opportunity to drill.

The Stock Board have agreed to hold but one meeting each day, adjourning the same at 12 o'clock.

At a meeting of the clergymen to-day, they offered their services to the Mayor to labor on the fortifications.

Gen. DANA has made a request upon the Mayor for 2,000 men to work upon the fortifications.

It is understood that a line of intrenchments around the city will be commenced to-morrow.

PROCLAMATION OF MAYOR HENRY.

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR OF THE CITY OF PHILADELPHIA, June 29, 1863.

Citizens of Philadelphia:

One more appeal is made to you in the name of duty, and of manhood. You can close your eyes no longer to the startling danger and disgrace which hang over your State and city. The foot of the rebel is already at the gates of your Capital, and unless you arouse to instant action, it may be a few days hence crush your own thresholds. There is yet time to prepare for defence. You number more than fifty thousand able-bodied men—the means to arm and equip yourselves are at hand. Close your manufactories, workshops and stores, but let the stern necessity for action safely make it obligatory. Let assembly rendezvous forthwith for organization and drill. Come ready to devote yourselves to the protection of your homes until your invasion can be no longer feared. Spurn from you the traitors who would detend you to inactivity or slavery—their tongues and hearts are more false and fearful than even the invaders of your soil. Let no one refuse to arm who will not be able to justify himself before his God in sight of a desolate hearth or of a dishonored family.

ALEXANDER HENRY,
Mayor of Philadelphia.

TELEGRAMS FROM BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, Monday, June 29.

The rebels appeared this morning at an early hour four miles beyond Marriottsville, and tore up the track.

About 11 o'clock another small force of rebels appeared at Sykesville, thirty-one miles from Baltimore, and destroyed the railroad track.

A rebel cavalry force encamped last night at Sandy Spring, Montgomery County, and sent out scouting parties. This force is supposed to be the same that has appeared at the points above mentioned.

The road to Washington is as yet unmolested by the rebels.

OUR CAVALRY NEAR GETTYSBURGH.

REBEL CAVALRY CAPTURED.

From the Baltimore American, June 29.

We learn that a portion of Gen. PLEASANTON's cavalry was yesterday operating in the rear of the enemy in the vicinity of Gettysburgh, and captured several parties of rebel cavalry out on a foraging expedition in the surrounding country. One party of 150 rebel cavalry prisoners arrived at Frederick yesterday, and it was reported that several other captures had been made, and the prisoners sent into other points on our lines. They had with them considerable quantities of horses and cattle.

A CALL FOR NEW-JERSEY TROOPS.

TRENTON, N. J., Monday, June 29.

On Saturday Gov. PARKER of this State received a telegram from Gov. CURTIN, stating that the rebels had again advanced in force upon Pennsylvania. Gov. PARKER forthwith took measures to call out the militia of New-Jersey.

[illegible] have been detailed [illegible] to report for service and proceed to report at once at Trenton.

Troops are arriving here, hourly, and will proceed at once to Pennsylvania.

TRENTON, Monday, June 29.

The quota of troops from New-Jersey to fill up her regiments is 5,000. Gov. PARKER will issue the orders to-morrow apportioning this number among the counties, according to the ratio of their population.

A company from Lambertsville, Hunterdon Co., arrived to-day to go to Pennsylvania, in pursuance of the proclamation just issued.

A BOLD REBEL RAID.

One Hundred and Forty Wagons and 800 Mules Taken Within Fifteen Miles of Washington.

One Hundred and Twenty-five Thousand Dollars' Worth of Property Captured.

A Number of Officers and Teamsters Taken Prisoners.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, June 28.

SILAS CROUSER, the brother of L. L., in the service of the Times, sends to this Bureau the following dispatch:

GREENCASTLE, Sunday Afternoon, June 28.

On the Rockville pike toward Frederick, about three miles this side of Rockville, this forenoon, I overtook a train of 140 wagons (all six mule teams) under charge of Capt. PAGE, who was proceeding toward Frederick. Within two miles of Rockville we met a man running in great haste toward the rear of the train, and exclaiming "the rebels are upon you!" He was immediately arrested and put under guard for attempting to create a panic! Subsequently we met a preacher who said that he had just dismissed his congregation at Rockville, and that the rebels held the place with a force of from 250 to three hundred, with a Provost Marshal appointed; and that they were arresting Union men, and putting them under guard! When within three-quarters of a mile of Rockville, Capt. PAGE and several of us rode ahead to the brow of a hill, and halted. Soon we saw a force of about one hundred rebels on the rise at the edge of the town. They sent out scouts, who advanced rapidly to within six hundred yards, and then quickly deployed into an open field on their left, while their main force lay behind the hill. The scouts then rode a few yards nearer, and fired a few shots at us. The balls whizzed by us, and we immediately wheeled our horses, and Capt. PAGE ordered the teamsters, who were nearly up to us by this time, to turn about. Then commenced the greatest confusion I ever saw. The rebels soon saw the turning wagons, and came down with lightning speed upon the unarmed teamsters, firing as they came. The teams at the head of the train which turned first came down at a thundering rate of speed upon those in the act of turning, taking off wheels, breaking the tongues, upsetting sometimes a half dozen wagons, and then themselves becoming a total wreck. Such was the scene from one end of the train to the other. The rebels in the meantime spurred for the rear of the train with almost speed, and shot such as did not halt at their command. Two ambulances containing some officers and a mail carrier were in the rear of the train, and are undoubtedly captured. Fortunately, the wagons were nearly all empty. Up to 3 P. M., the time that we left Tomsellytown, about fifteen or twenty made their way in having managed to escape in various ways. The capture of this train is quite a serious loss, as the mules were in splendid condition.

The rebels undoubtedly captured many people and teams who were passing toward Washington from Frederick and elsewhere. At least eight hundred mules swepsed South in an hour this morning. For the whole affair somebody should be held to savage responsibility.

A RAID ON RATIONS.

Attack of Rebel Cavalry upon Canal Boats at Edwards' Ferry.

ABOUT 200,000 ARMY RATIONS DESTROYED.

WASHINGTON, Monday, June 29.

The usual exaggeration of our misfortunes characterizes the statement of the loss of rations yesterday, of canal barges, at Edward's Ferry. These boats were not carrying to the army its supply of food, as is alleged, for thirteen days. They were bringing back a surplus of food, after having delivered a full supply to the troops. Nor is it true that the rebel cavalry carried it off. They simply filled their haversacks with crackers, and committed beef, bacon, pork, meal, coffee, beans, molasses, barges and all, to the flames. Not a hundred thousand rations were destroyed.

MOVEMENTS OF THE REBEL CAVALRY.

WASHINGTON, Monday, June 29.

It is said that one hundred and fifty colored men were captured by the rebel cavalry at Edwards' Ferry, yesterday.

Reports generally agree that 100 negroes were captured with the large train of wagons and mules, near Rockville, on Sunday.

A gentleman in that vicinity had 12 horses stolen from his stable.

A large drove of fifty fine beef cattle, grazing not far from Montgomery, in the same county, (Montgomery,) was secured through the vigilance of Col. BARNWELL, and, at wonderful speed, driven into Washington this morning, by a circuitous route.

Two of our citizens, visiting their farms near Drainesville, have returned hither minus their carriage and horses, which were confiscated by the rebels. They represent that the enemy consisted of nearly 4,000 men, with 15 pieces of artillery, under Gen. FITZHUGH LEE. They crossed the Potomac at Muddy Branch, taking with them a number of prisoners. All the horses and forage about Drainesville were seized by the rebels.

The enemy's cavalry made their appearance at numerous points in Montgomery County yesterday and this morning, seizing all the finest horses, to take the place of their jaded animals. Some few of them showed themselves as near Washington as Silver Spring, five miles from the city, but did not remain long.

The raiders this morning stopped the stage which connects with the railroad at Laurel, taking out the horses, but not otherwise interfering with the driver and passengers. Sandy Spring, fourteen miles from Laurel, was also robbed of similar quadrupeds.

A gentleman just returned from Virginia, eight miles beyond Long Bridge, reports the rebels also engaged in horse-stealing in that vicinity.

A farmer, living [illegible] beyond the Potomac branch of the Potomac, was on Saturday visited by some rebel officers, who particularly inquired as to the location and strength of the fortifications in the neighborhood.

It thus appears, from them and other facts already known to the public, that the rebel cavalry is operating to some extent around Washington. But their depredations will, in view of present indications, be of short duration.

THE LATEST REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Monday, June 29.

The rebels who cut the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Sykesville and Marriottsville numbered about twenty. The culvert at the former place was not disturbed.

Information has been received that the rebel cavalry force now roving in Maryland numbers about four thousand. A portion of the force consists of mounted infantry, all picked men, and well mounted.

The sutlers who were captured at Fairfax and Annandale, were taken by the rebels across Muddy Ford, on the Potomac, and carried to Cockeville, Md., and there paroled, together with about three hundred teamsters, soldiers and others captured by FITZ HUGH LEE.

The rebels came, late last night, to within four miles of Laurel Station, on the Washington Branch Railroad, robbed a saddler's store there, and took away with them the best horses they could find in that neighborhood.

It is reported that the cavalry force which entered York several days ago, are moving along the Susquehanna, toward the Philadelphia and Wilmington Railroad.

It is positively certain that the headquarters of the rebel army of invasion are at Hagerstown, and that their main infantry force is either in Pennsylvania or within easy concentrating distance of Hagerstown. The rebels have accumulated enough provisions there to last them three weeks.

A person who left Richmond on the 25th reports that one division of BRAGG's army is there, and that all the Government employes were under arms. They are barricading the streets, and building additional fortifications on all the principal roads leading into the city. The panic is intense there.

OUR HARRISBURG CORRESPONDENCE.

The Advance of the Rebels—Skirmishing at Gettysburgh—The Important State Documents Removed to Philadelphia.

HARRISBURGH, Penn., Saturday, June 27, 1863.

The rebels are slowly advancing toward this place, having entered Carlisle at 1 P. M. Telegraphic communication with Carlisle was suspended at about 12 M. Our forces have retired to Mechanicsburgh, which is nine miles from Harrisburgh. All the ammunition, knapsacks and surplus clothing of the advance force have been sent here by rail. No opposition to the rebel advance will be made beyond the Harrisburgh fortifications. We have strengthened the force on the west side of the Susquehanna, and dug rifle-pits about three miles from the earthworks. The exact number of the approaching column is not positively known, although it is placed at 12,000. The people of Harrisburgh have been busy all day in packing their furniture and goods, preparatory to removal. The news from the direction of Gettysburgh is of an extremely exciting character. A skirmish is reported to have taken place not far from that town, in which we lost over thirty men taken prisoners. A slight skirmish between our own and the enemy's cavalry, took place, yesterday, at Carlisle. We had seven men taken prisoners. The Northern Central Railroad is cut, and the President of the Pennsylvania Central is momentarily expecting news of the destruction of bridges and track on that road.

A messenger just in from the vicinity of Gettysburgh, says the rebels occupied that place yesterday evening. Gen. JOHNSON, at the head of the Twenty-sixth Pennsylvania regiment, was there at the time, and resisted as long as possible the enemy's approach. He was at length overwhelmed by superior numbers, and lost all his baggage and camp equipage. Col. JOHNSON's force consisted of about 800 men, and the rebels had an entire brigade.

The rebel line seems to extend from Gettysburgh to Carlisle. The enemy is advancing cautiously in this direction, and will probably come up to our outer line of works by to-morrow, or, at farthest, the following day.

Gov. CURTIN, Gen. COWAN, and several prominent citizens of the place were in close conversation this morning. All the important State documents remaining here have been ordered to be shipped to Philadelphia.

It is evident that our military commanders here rely somewhat upon HOOKER's army to discover and defeat the rebel invaders. Certainly we must have a force beside our own to check the progress of the rebels. It is extremely doubtful if the Union force on the opposite side of the Susquehanna will be able to hold their own, although they will exhaust twenty or all in their power. The recent rains have caused a rise in the river and consequently destroyed the availability of the fords. If the worst should come to the worst, the bridges will be destroyed and our forces will do all they can to defend the city, by keeping the rebels from crossing the stream.

Gen. COWAN has ordered that the school-rooms in the city shall be taken for hospital purposes and; if the occasion demands it, the churches will also be used. WHIT.

Movements of Gen. KEIFER's Forces—The Northern Central Railroad Held by the Rebels—Gen. Couch Concentrating His Forces—Gen. Ewell Acquainted with the Scene of Operations.

HARRISBURGH, Penn., Sunday, June 28, 1863.

This morning, Gen. KEIFER's force had fallen back to a small village called Oyster Point. The enemy continued to press them, so that, later in the day, they abandoned that position, and are now with the main force, in and about the defences across the Susquehanna. The main force of the rebels is at Carlisle. It consists of infantry, accompanied with not less than three batteries of artillery. During the day the rebel cavalry have been reconnoitering the country between here and Carlisle. Their videts approached to within three miles of our rifle pits, and were critically seen by Capt. BARNARD, Chief of Cavalry, who proceeded to the front on a tour of observation. Thus, it will be noticed that the enemy has steadily advanced from the moment of his crossing the Potomac, until he has at length come within shelling distance of the State Capital. Our troops under Gen. KEIFER, which proceeded from here to Mount Holly, yesterday, have been gradually pressed back to the defences, the apparent object of their advance being simply to keep watch of the enemy's movements, and detain him as long as possible without bringing on an engagement. The enemy not only has possession of the Cumberland Valley, but also the country to the east of it, including Gettysburgh and York. The Northern Central Railroad he has rendered useless to us, and although at the present moment he has not reached the Pennsylvania Central, he will probably have done so in a very few hours, judging from the reports that have been received of movements in the vicinity of York to-day.

Gov. CURTIN has received information that the rebels advanced from York this afternoon. Our troops stationed at that point had previously retired to Wrightsville, a town on the bank of the Susquehanna, directly opposite Columbia. A fight is reported to have taken place at Wrightsville, during which the rebels threw shells completely over the heads of our men. Several of them struck in the river. The full particulars of the affair, supposing an engagement has taken place, have not yet transpired, but it is not unreasonable to believe that in view of the superiority of the rebel forces over our own, no great resistance will be made by the latter.

Gen. COWAN is concentrating all the available troops he has on the opposite side of the Susquehanna, directly across from Harrisburgh. In response to the Governor's proclamation, men have been arriving here all day, for the purpose of giving their support to the defence of the Capital. Some of them came in on foot, others on horseback and in all sorts of vehicles. They marched to the arsenal, where guns were dealt out to them, and then crossed the bridge to join the forces at the front. In this city 300 contrabands formed in line, tendered their services, received muskets, and are now in the intrenchments. As they passed through the streets they were loudly cheered by soldiers and citizens. The Philadelphia Grey Reserves, having been sworn into the service yesterday, crossed over the river this afternoon.

The exact number of troops we have on the other side cannot, of course, be revealed at present, but it is believed that Gen. COWAN will be able to keep the enemy from taking the city. All the movements on our part indicate that we are to act wholly on the defensive. The fortifications have been strengthened, intrenchments and rifle-pits dug, and all the preparations made to properly meet the enemy. To-morrow is looked forward to with great anxiety. It is now confidently expected that the attack will commence at daylight. All the baggage of the officers, also all unnecessary camp equipage, have been removed to this side of the river. An extra train of cars was run to Philadelphia at 12 M., having on board numerous cases containing State papers and documents. The principal stores of the place are closed, the merchants having shipped their goods to the East.

A number of citizens left town to-day, and others, in attempting to do so, were captured by the rebels, paroled and sent back. Two men left here in a buggy for Mechanicsburgh at 1 P. M., and had not proceeded five miles before they were captured, the horse and buggy taken from them and themselves paroled and ordered back to the city. Another person was walking some four miles from the city, when he was discovered by a rebel, who struck him with his bayonet and then allowed him to proceed hither.

Correspondents are rapidly assembling here, there being no less than twenty different representatives of different newspapers. All official information is gained through Prof. CORYELL, Chief of Gen. COWAN's Staff. A bulletin is made out as often during the day as the importance of news received demands and placed in the correspondents' room. The information that one gets from that source all get.

Midnight—An attack of the Pennsylvania Central Railroad, just in, reports that the extensive bridge at Columbia was burned this evening by our forces. The bridge was a mile and a quarter in length.

It is also reported that the bridge on the Northern Central Railroad at Goldsboro, and the office at Yorkhaven, three miles from Goldsboro, were destroyed by the rebels this afternoon.

AMERICAN TOPICS.

DEBATE UPON THE SEIZURE OF BRITISH SHIPS BY OUR CRUISERS.

In the House of Lords on the 15th, the Marquis of Clanricarde moved for copies of any reports that may have been received from the Admiral commanding Her Majesty's squadron on the North American and West Indian station, concerning the protection from seizure or visitation afforded by the Ariadne and other of Her Majesty's ships or gunboats, by convoy or otherwise; and asked what had been the result of the remonstrances made to the United States Government by Her Majesty's Minister at Washington against the seizure of British vessels engaged in legitimate commerce. The noble Marquis recapitulated the complaints which had been made a few weeks ago in reference to the proceedings of the American cruisers, contending that they were in contravention of international law, and that it was the duty of Her Majesty's Government to reinforce the North American squadron so as to afford adequate protection to our merchantmen. He also urged that the constant seizures which were being made by the Federal fleet were not for the purpose of maintaining the blockade, but of destroying, if possible, a large and legitimate British trade which had sprung up with Nassau and Matamoras. He altogether doubted the efficiency of the blockade of the Southern ports, and said it ought not to be recognized by Her Majesty's Government. He read a letter from a Lancashire manufacturer, giving details in reference to four steam merchant vessels which had successively run the blockade of Charleston seventeen times in the course of one month, conveying £120,000 worth of British goods into Charleston, and taking out £300,000 worth of cotton. The noble Lord, in conclusion, complained that the Ariadne and other of Her Majesty's ships had been employed, in contravention of international law, in conveying certain vessels engaged in commerce, while they had altogether omitted to afford protection to others.

Earl RUSSELL said the statements of the noble Marquis were inconsistent, inasmuch as he declared that the vessels he desired to protect were engaged in an innocent trade, while in the same breath he admitted that numerous British vessels were carrying on a profitable trade in running the blockade. The attention of the Government had been drawn to one or two recent cases of seizure, and he had written to Lord LYONS upon the subject, directing him to inform the American Government that it was evident that some of the ships which had been seized were trading with neutral ports, and that a strong impression prevailed in this country that they had been seized in a reckless manner. The answer of the American Government was that there were sufficient grounds to justify the seizure, and that those grounds would be proved before the proper tribunal, namely, an American Prize Court. He had no objection to produce a copy of the correspondence which had taken place upon the subject. The noble Earl added, that in the opinion of the Home Government, the blockade maintained by the American fleet was sufficiently efficient to entitle it to be observed, and he thought every allowance ought to be made for any hasty act on the part of the blockading forces. He believed there was every desire on the part of the American Government to prevent injustice from being done.

The Duke of Somerset said it would be inconvenient to produce the reports which had been received by the Admiralty, from the Admiral commanding the squadron on the North American and West Indian station.

The motion was then withdrawn.

THE TRANSATLANTIC TELEGRAPH.

In the House of Commons on the same evening Mr. LAYARD stated that an international conference had been held in Paris for the purpose of examining into the project of a telegraphic line from Europe to North America via Russia and the West Indies, but Her Majesty's Government had not considered it necessary to take part in that Conference.

ENGLAND AND JAPAN.

Mr. LAYARD in answer to Mr. LINDSAY, stated that some time ago a murderous attack was made upon four British subjects riding upon the high road in Japan, in which one gentleman, Mr. RICHARDSON, was killed and two others wounded. Her Majesty's Government had demanded from the Japanese Government an ample apology for the outrage, the payment of £100,000 as a penalty, and that the perpetrators of the outrage should be taken, tried and executed (a laugh) in the presence of one or more British officers, and that the family of the victim should be compensated.

SPIRIT OF THE PRESS.

AFFAIRS AT VICKSBURGH.

The London Times, in an editorial on the position of affairs at Vicksburgh, as advised by the China, argues that the first accounts had not been followed by the successful results expected, and with every day GRANT's position was becoming more critical. The article says:

"The fortunes of the Federal arms at the last date were balancing between a temporary check and total failure. All the details leave an impression that unusual energy had secured very signal results."

Later advices from Vicksburgh were analogous

...ceived in England. The more especially as it was reported through private channels, and extensively credited, that Vicksburgh had been relieved, and that Grant's army had been surrounded by the Confederates.

AN ADDRESS FOR SYMPATHY.

The London Morning Herald publishes a lengthy appeal from nearly one hundred ministers, of all denominations, in the Confederate States, seeking to enlist English sympathy in the Confederate cause. It is stated that the address originated from no political source whatever, but from a conference of ministers held at Richmond. The address takes the ground that the restoration of the Union is impossible.

FRANCE.

In addition to the royal congratulations previously announced, the Emperor had received the congratulations of the King of Italy, the King of the Belgians, the King and Queen of Spain, and the Queen of Holland, upon the capture of Puebla. La France states that the departure of troops for Mexico has been deferred until the arrival of Gen. Forey's report.

The Constitutionnel also denies the reported dispatch of reinforcements to Mexico. The Constitutionnel likewise publishes an article, signed by M. Janvrin, wherein it says that:

"The taking of Puebla is a sure pledge of a glorious end of the undertaking. The nations know that our honor once vindicated, and reparation obtained, our triumph changes into benefaction. We are not enemies, but liberators, of the Mexican people, who were deceived by an iniquitous Government. They will learn that under NAPOLEON III. the French soldier is more than ever the soldier of civilization and humanity."

The report of Gen. FOREY, dated May 18, had reached Paris. It agrees generally with the published accounts of the surrender of Puebla. Gen. FOREY states that on his refusing to permit the retreat of the Mexican troops from Puebla, Gen. ORTEGA declared on dissolving his army. He also caused all arms to be broken, the guns to be spiked, and the magazines to be blown up. Gen. ORTEGA then sent a flag of truce to Gen. FOREY, announcing that the garrison had fulfilled its defence, and placed itself at Gen. FOREY's discretion.—"Then," continues Gen. FOREY's report, "12,000 men, the greater part without uniforms, arms or equipments—the whole of the latter having been broken and thrown into the ditch—constituted themselves prisoners. From 1,000 to 1,200 officers caused me to be informed that they were assembled at the palace, waiting my orders. All the material of war remains in our possession. It only appears to have been partly spoiled, and even that portion incomplete. The report says, in conclusion: "The army is at the height of its joy, and will march in a few days upon Mexico."

Prior to the receipt of the report the Emperor addressed a letter to Gen. FOREY, testifying the strong satisfaction which the taking of Puebla had given him. The Emperor also expressed his appreciation of the perseverance and courage of the army, "which," he says, "in a distant expedition, fought against the climate and an enemy so much more obstinate, because deceived respecting my intentions." His Majesty continued: "I thank my soldiers for the loss of so many brave men; but I pass the compliatory thought, lest it has not been useless for the interests and honor of France, and for civilization. Our aim is not the imposed on the Mexicans a Government against their will, nor to make our success serve to the triumph of any party whatever. I desire that Mexico may be born to a new life, and that, shortly, regenerated by a Government founded upon the national will, and the principles of order and justice, and respect for international law, she may, by establishing friendly relations with France, acknowledge that it is to France that she owes her peace and prosperity. I await the official report to give to the army and its chief their merited recompense. For the present, General, receive my warmest and sincere congratulations.

(Signed) NAPOLEON."

It was reported Forey would be nominated a Marshal of France, and Gen. BAZAINE a Senator.

The second effort to elect a representative in the Sixth Circumscription of Paris terminated in the election of M. GUÉROULT, Opposition, by a vote of 17,425 against 11,016 for the Government candidate.

The Bourse was firm and advancing. Rentes, 69-70.

In official quarters at Paris it was emphatically asserted that the Emperor NAPOLEON's policy in the Polish question is a pacific one.

The kaisers of Austria and Russia, the propositions of France and England, in regards to Poland, had reached Paris.

RECEIPT OF THE NEWS OF THE FALL OF PUEBLA.

The following are the terms in which the Moniteur announces the above event:

"The news of the capture of Puebla having arrived by an unusual route (per sole conveyance) the official reports of Gen. FOREY cannot reach Europe till about the 3d of July, by the English mail steamer. The regular packet boat, which is expected about the 15th inst. at St. Nazaire, would probably have left Vera Cruz on the 15th or 16th of May, before the capture of Puebla was known there. According to private dispatches, the garrison of Puebla would have capitulated (serait rendu) on the 17th of May, and already on the 18th a division of the French army would have commenced its march on Mexico (se serait mis en marche)."

The Paris correspondent of the Indépendance Belge, publishes the following details of the manner in which the news was received by the Emperor:

"An English steamer which left Vera Cruz on the 22d of May arrived at New-York on the 21st, left on the 1st of June with the news which M. DE MORNY had forwarded to M. BAUDIN in Paris. It was from a point of the British coast called Green Coast, and not from Liverpool, that the thirteen-line telegram was forwarded direct to Paris, containing the much-desired information. The English agent had mis-written the name of M. DE MORNY, which, for a moment, threw a doubt upon the authenticity of the news; however, as it was almost simultaneously confirmed from another source, M. BAUDIN DE LOURIS, who received the dispatch about 5 in the afternoon, immediately telegraphed it to Fontainebleau. The Emperor was on the point of sitting down to dinner when he received the dispatch from the Minister for Foreign Affairs. A friend of ours, present over his Majesty's shoulder, read the news aloud, and joyfully exclaimed, 'Mexico is ours!' The Emperor then dashed to the dispatch, and threw it out of the window to the band of the Imperial Guard, which was playing outside during the repast of the Minister of Marine. The band of the Guard, and a hearty cheer, was immediately given, which was joined in by all outside. In the evening the houses were spontaneously illuminated, and guns fired in honor of the event. M. DE PAVIGNY announced it the same evening at the Palais Bourbon, but it was not officially stated that the news was official. The members of the Cabinet did not like to take upon themselves the responsibility of firing the guns yesterday evening, (16th,) but to-day (11th,) between 2 and 2 P. M., probably from an order issued at Fontainebleau, a salvo of 21 guns was fired from the Invalides."

The Correspondent of the Daily News writes under date of June 14:

"The news reached the Emperor just as he was sitting down to dinner. Prince BENEDETTI, the Austrian ambassador, who was a guest at Fontainebleau, made a speech before dinner was over, in which he congratulated the Emperor on the victory. In the course of the evening a corrected version of the news was distributed to the assembly. The next day (Friday) the Empress went to the Fontainebleau flower show, and being presented with a new rose, she immediately named it the 'Puebla.'"

The papers continue to complain that no dangerous rumors have been received from either Spain or England. The France continuing to work the theme that full and authentic news cannot be referred to such a long date as that fixed by the Moniteur yesterday, July 3, says that the Doria, (not the Doria) sent to Havana by Admiral BOUET, (omitted in the summary of Gen. FOREY's dispatches) a Spanish packet expected at Cadiz on June 22, and that vessel therefore, took far early news by that channel.

The France, following up the idea ventilated by M. MICHEL CHEVALIER, that Mexico is to be permanently occupied for the civilization of the Latin race on the Western continent, says that a civil service in every department is to be immediately organized in that country. French officers are going out to work the finances, Post-office, Custom-house, electric telegraph and railways. A railway is to be made and only from Vera Cruz to the City of Mexico, but from that capital to the Pacific Ocean. A canal from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific is also in contemplation. All these schemes tending to the permanent occupation of the country, and to a greater drain upon the resources of France than the war itself has been, are quite contrary to the reiterated official assurances that no conquest was intended, and that the Mexicans were to be free to choose their own government. We, however, quite believe the assertions of the France. I am persuaded, from various indications, that a permanent occupation is, and was from the first, intended. This scheme on behalf of the Latin race, which a despotic government has been able to undertake behind the back of the nation, which has no sympathy with it whatever, will surely invoke France to a war with the "Saxon race" as soon as the civil war in America shall be ended.

POLAND.

The political aspect of the Polish question had undergone no change.

Crown telegrams report the following movements of the insurgents, &c.:

The insurgent leader, BAWRINOWSKI, had met with considerable success at Nagocosus, in the Palatine of Plock.

In Lithuania an engagement favorable to the insurgents had taken place at Olkienika, near Kowna.

Gov. MONAVIEFF has caused the Abbe ZENSKI and the landowner LASKOWICZ to be shot, and the Polish Chief, CONSMO, to be hung. On the 10th inst. CZARNOMSKI gained a brilliant victory over the Russians at Konski, in the government of Kaslomie. Two Russian companies were completely destroyed. On the same day the Polish chiefs Ignatowicz and Kalicki, the insurgent Chief, Arsen, and the Capuchin Father, Konarski, were hung in front of the Citadel of Warsaw. It is said that the Archbishop of Warsaw having protested against the massacres, had been arrested and transported to St. Petersburgh. Another account says he had simply been ordered to remain in St. Petersburgh.

The Russian Government is said to have vetoed the Grand Duke CONSTANTINE that it could no longer be responsible for his safety.

REMARKABLE ABSTRACTION.

Private letters received from Warsaw at Berlin, on June 15, state that the Commissaries of the Exchequer, upon examining the Government Treasury in that city, discovered that Russian bank notes, Polish bonds, and gold half imperials to the amount of 5,000,000 silver roubles had been abstracted. In their place were found scraps signed by the principal Government Four officials, and the books in which the number of the missing bonds were entered, had also disappeared.

A MYSTERIOUS AFFAIR.

The Breslau Gazette relates the following:

"The Grand Duke CONSTANTINE every day receives the foreign journals in one packet, and he is most punctilious in opening it himself in order that no important piece of news shall be kept from him. One day lately there was found in the packet that city's number of the Rome journal of the Italian Government of Warsaw. How could the paper have got into the well-sealed packet coming from abroad? That no one has yet been able to discover. If this should continue, the Grand Duke intends to have executed. We shall be henceforth, if we had forgotten it, 'All our troops will be of no avail no longer, as we shall not have discovered the National Government!'"

The Times' "City Article" says:

"The English funds were not so strong yesterday, but there was no other cause for it than a renewal of the Estates on the Paris Bourse. In the foreign stock markets a further average rise of ¼ @ cent. took place. Mexican bonds are quoted at 39@39¼. The Confederate Loan was also strong, in consequence of the Northern advertisement of the Relief of Vicksburgh by the Confederates, and the issue were finally quoted at 1 @ cent. discount."

The Times, referring to the speech of Mr. BARNES at the London Tavern, says that he shows his incoherency as a professor of peace, at a time when every Northern man admits that the Confederates will fight to the last.

LONDON, Thursday, June 18.

Mr. MASON, Envoy of the rebel States, has sent to the Times the correspondence with Mr. CONWAY, the American gentleman who was introduced to him at the London Tavern on Tuesday last, the 16th inst., under the auspices of Mr. JOHN BRIGHT.

Mr. CONWAY commences his letter, dated June 10, by informing Mr. MASON that he (CONWAY) is authorized, on behalf of the Anti-Slavery people of America, who have sent him to this country, to propose that if the Confederate States will immediately commence the work of negro emancipation, the Abolitionists and the Anti-Slavery leaders of the Northern States shall at once oppose the further prosecution of the war, and since they hold the balance of power, they will cause the war to cease by an immediate withdrawal of every kind of supplies.

Mr. MASON replied to this by saying that the proposition is worthy of the greatest consideration, and requests Mr. CONWAY to produce his credentials.

To this request, Mr. CONWAY answers that he will send to America for them.

Mr. MASON, on receipt of Mr. CONWAY's reply, at once terminated the correspondence, remarking that it would perhaps be well for Abolitionists to learn that there had a desire to have their name used to enter into compromise on the Slavery question.

Mr. MASON, however, replied to the question, whether the Confederate States would consent to the emancipation of their negroes on the terms stated in Mr. CONWAY's letter, asserting that the Northern States would never be in a position to put this question to the South, nor would the South ever be in a position to give an answer to it.

The Times is of the opinion that once delivered from the Mexican war, the Emperor of France will make his powerful voice heard in America, and in very different terms from those which he has hitherto used. It adds:

"Nor can we entertain which doubt that his voice, if earnestly and decidedly raised, will be obeyed. By the great part of the American people, it is anxious to give up a worthless and profitless war, which has engulfed in its vortex their youth, their wealth and their liberties, will be eagerly and, let it come from what quarter it may. It may be that the prospects of such an event will operate as the most effectual of peacemakers, and may induce the North to anticipate such wise (those of National pride by timely concessions while in their power to make them freely and spontaneously."

The International Financial Society have made arrangements for purchasing the property and rights of the Hudson Bay Company, by giving £200 for every £100 share. The total capital of the Company is £500,000, and the total amount of purchase will therefore be £1,500,000. A deposit of £100,000 has already been paid.

The Times City Article says:

"The favorable tendency of the English funds is checked by dullness on the Paris Bourse. The demand for discount at the Bank yesterday was moderate. In the Stock Exchange a sale for advance on Government securities was made at 92¾ per cent. The market for foreign stocks yesterday shows an average decline of ¼ per cent.

MESSAGES FROM HIS HONOR THE MAYOR.

The following message was received from His Honor the Mayor, returning without approval the resolution rescinding the resolution approved by the Mayor January three, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, permitting William E. Payton, number two hundred and seventy-four Bowery, to keep goods in front of his store:

MAYOR'S OFFICE,

NEW-YORK, June 22, 1863.

To the Honorable the Board of Aldermen:

I must return without my approval the resolution rescinding the resolution approved January three, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, permitting Wm. E. Payton, number two hundred and seventy-four Bowery, to keep goods in front of his store. I find, upon inquiry, that Mr. Payton's neighbors exercise the same privilege which it is proposed to take from him, and it is manifestly unfair that a different rule should be meted out to the parties engaged in business in the same neighborhood.

I understand that the dissatisfaction which exists on the part of the person or persons residing in the vicinity, from whom the objection in the second count arises, not from Mr. Payton keeping goods in front of his store, but from the manner in which he has placed them upon the sidewalk in the receipt and delivery of goods, which is unavoidable by any one doing a large business, as I am informed is the case with him.

I am reliably assured that Mr. Payton only uses the permission given by the resolution sought to be repealed with the most careful regard to the rights of his neighbors, and I can see no reason why it should be revoked.

GEORGE OPDYKE, Mayor.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

There appears to be no longer a doubt that the whole rebel army under Lee, with the exception of Stuart's cavalry, is in Pennsylvania. Thirty-seven thousand troops, with 104 pieces of artillery, had passed through Chambersburgh up to Saturday last. Gen. Lee himself, with his Staff, was in Chambersburgh on Saturday morning. At 11 o'clock he, in company with Longstreet and A. P. Hill, left that place on the Baltimore pike, in the direction of Gettysburgh and the Northern Central Railroad, and the indications yesterday were that a strong effort would be made to effect a lodgment on this side of the Susquehanna at some point along that road. The rebels in the immediate front of Harrisburgh, up to a late hour last night, remained apparently inactive. Previous to the burning of the Columbia bridge on Saturday, a fight took place, in which several companies of the Cameron Dragoons regiment, of Philadelphia, are said to have been captured. The rebels evacuated Wrightsville at 10 o'clock yesterday forenoon, and moved toward York. A number of the Twentieth Pennsylvania militia were captured at Wrightsville.

Our special dispatch from Harrisburgh states that throughout the day yesterday the rebels showed no disposition to make an attack. A few shots were exchanged between the pickets in the morning, and subsequently our men practiced with artillery in order to get the range, and this was the extent of the hostilities. The opinion gained some credence last evening that the rebels were maneuvering to capture Harrisburgh by a flank movement. It is supposed that their plans will be fully developed to-day.

The State officers of Pennsylvania, with the exception of Gov. Curtin, left Harrisburgh for Philadelphia on Sunday night.

York was fully occupied by the rebels on Sunday, under command of Gen. Early, who had his headquarters there. He had issued an order levying contributions to a large amount from the citizens, and giving them until yesterday noon to comply with it.

The excitement in Philadelphia yesterday was very great. Business was almost entirely suspended, and the receipts of produce by the Pennsylvania Railroad ceased. Five companies of troops were raised by the Corn Exchange in the morning; the coal dealers resolved to close their collieries, to enable the miners to volunteer, and the merchants resolved to raise $1,000,000 for defensive purposes.

The following is the population of the five counties of Pennsylvania which are now "beneath the foot of the rebel invader":

Franklin	42,128	Cumberland	49,698
Fulton	9,131	York	68,200
Adams	28,006
Total			187,561

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad was torn up by the rebel cavalry, yesterday morning, at Martinsburgh and Sykesville, the latter place only thirty-one miles from Baltimore, thus cutting off that city from communication with the North and West, except by way of Philadelphia. No demonstration was made on the road between Baltimore and Washington.

The movements of the Army of the Potomac have been very rapid for the last few days. Frederick, Md., and the surrounding country were fully occupied by our troops on Saturday last. Its present position must be left to conjecture. A portion of Pleasanton's cavalry were on Sunday operating on the rear of the enemy in the vicinity of Gettysburgh, and captured several squads of rebel cavalry on foraging expeditions. One party of prisoners, numbering 150, was on Sunday sent into Frederick.

We have the particulars, this morning, of the capture of an army train of 140 wagons, within fifteen miles of Washington, on Rockville Pike, while proceeding toward Frederick. The train was under command of a Capt. Page, who appears to have acted in a very reckless manner, as he had ample warning that Rockville was in possession of the enemy. Fortunately most of the wagons were empty, though the loss is very heavy in mules.

Another raid was made by rebel cavalry on Sunday, on some canal barges at Edwards' Ferry. The barges were proceeding down the canal with surplus rations, after having supplied the Army of the Potomac. Barges, rations and all were destroyed.

Gov. Parker, of New-Jersey, on the reception of a telegram from Gov. Curtin on Saturday, informing him of the second entrance of the rebels into Pennsylvania, forthwith took measures to again call out the militia of the State. Troops are arriving at Trenton hourly, and will proceed at once to the scene of danger.

On Wednesday and Thursday, the 24th and 25th inst., the advance of Gen. McCook's column of Gen. Rosecrans' army had brisk skirmishes with a rebel brigade in Guy's Gap, in which our loss was 325 killed and wounded.

Early yesterday morning Portland was thrown into a panic by a report that another batch of pirates was in the harbor and about to commence depredations. The alarm proved to be a false one, however—a few honest fishermen being the innocent cause of it. It is now believed that the report of the doings of rebel pirates at the mouth of the Bay of Fundy grew out of the capture of the Archer by the Tacony, and the subsequent burning of the latter. Every man who was on board the Tacony, including the two recruits from the ship Resolution, is now in New-Orleans, and it is believed that there are now no rebel pirates on the coast to fright the souls of peaceful citizens.

The Government, through our Exchange Commissioner at Fortress Monroe, has notified the rebel authorities that its protection will be extended to all officers and men, without regard to color, and that all violations of the cartel and the usages of war, will be met with prompt retaliation.

FROM EUROPE.

Advices from Europe, four days later, reach us by the arrival of the steamship Hecla at this port and the City of Baltimore off Cape Race. The news is to the 19th inst. In the British House of Lords, on the 18th, the Marquis of Clanricarde moved for copies of any reports which had been received from the West India Station, regarding the protection afforded to merchant vessels by British vessels-of-war, and asked what had been the result of the remonstrances addressed to the United States Government against the seizure of British vessels engaged in legitimate trade. Earl Russell, in reply, justified the action taken by our Government in regard to seizures, considered the blockade sufficiently efficient to be entitled to be observed, and declined to produce the documents—whereupon the motion was withdrawn. The impression was prevalent in Liverpool and London, based by advices taken out by the China, that Gen. Grant would be forced to raise the siege of Vicksburgh, and the rebel loan, in consequence, had rallied to one per cent discount. The French Emperor, in view of the "capture" of Puebla, had addressed a congratulatory letter to Gen. Forey. It was asserted in official quarters in Paris that the Emperor's policy on the Polish question was a pacific one. The Polish revolutionists are reported to have gained several important successes over the Russians. The latest reports of the Liverpool markets leave cotton unchanged in price. Breadstuffs were quiet, and Provisions flat. Consols, 92@92¼ for money.

GENERAL NEWS.

The body of a Mr. Lovett was found at a late hour last evening by Mr. Holmes, janitor of the building No. 80 Nassau-street, in a water-closet of that building. The face, head and body of the deceased were very much bruised and mutilated. Officer Crowe, of the Second Precinct Police, arrested an Englishman named Thomas A. Henzen on suspicion of having committed the murder. A Coroner's investigation will take place at the Second Precinct Station-house this morning.

In the Board of Aldermen yesterday, Mr. Farley asked if the resolution repealing the Broadway Railroad grant to the Harlem Railroad Company, concurred in at the previous meeting, was yet in the possession of the City. The President answered that it was. Mr. Farley then moved to reconsider the vote of concurrence. Mr. Boole supported the motion, stating that the Harlem Company had purchased all the necessary materials for the road, and even ordered cars to be made for it. Their loss by a revocation of the grant would fall upon the City in the way of a judgment for damages. The grant was an advantageous one to the City, would pay it at least $250,000 annually. If it should be annulled, the way would be left open for a new plundering Broadway Railroad scheme by the Legislature. Mr. Harris took a legal view of the subject and argued that the grant was given in perpetuity, and was therefore irrevocable. Mr. Mitchell questioned this, believing the Common Council had the right to revoke any of their grants, but would be liable for damages resulting from any revocation. The motion was carried, and the paper was then referred to the Committee on Railroads. The paper has a somewhat curious history. After being concurred in, last Thursday, it disappeared while it was in charge of one of the Council Board clerks. He was copying it, and missed it after a moment's absence from his desk. The Clerk of the Board being absent, a copy could not be attested, to be sent to the Mayor, and yesterday the original mysteriously returned to the Clerk's table in the Board of Aldermen. The Board adjourned to 1 P. M. on Thursday.

The Board of Councilmen received and laid over a message from the Mayor vetoing the resolution rescinding the ordinance permitting the Hudson River Railroad Company to run a dumb engine through the City. The Mayor says no statement of facts showing reasons for rescinding accompanies the resolution, but he presumes the reason for its adoption is the belief that the dumb engine is more hazardous than horse-power. He reasons in favor of the dumb engine, believing it is superior, in every respect, to horse-power. The Board concurred to increase the pay of the Water Police in the Croton Department to $3 per day, and also to direct the Committee on National Affairs to confer with Gov. Seymour and Senator Morgan, and ascertain what the State Harbor Defence Commission have done or are going to do for New-York harbor. The Board adjourned to Monday next.

Alderman Farley, Chairman of the Committee on National Affairs, has received a letter from Gov. Seymour, stating that he will be in town and confer with the Committee early this week, on the subject of providing suitable defences to the harbor.

There was a rise of 2@2½ ⅌ cent. on Gold and Exchange, yesterday, on the Pennsylvania invasion news, and a depressed feeling in Stocks, especially on the Railway lines connected with the trade of Pennsylvania, such as Reading, Pittsburgh and Fort Wayne, and Cleveland and Pittsburgh. The New-York Roads and Government Stock of 1881 and Treasury paper were also lower than on Saturday, while the demand for the New Loan of 1882 continued active, the sales reaching $1,431,250.

Breadstuffs were generally in more demand, yesterday, at advanced prices. Cotton was in active request and decidedly dearer. Petroleum was selling freely, chiefly for future delivery, and was quoted higher. A fair inquiry prevailed for Hay, Hops, Spiced Tallow, Whisky and the principal kinds of Provisions. Sugars were active and buoyant. Heavier freight engagements were effected at firmer rates.

The Live Stock Markets are lower this week. Cattle number 3,350 at Forty-fourth-street, including about 200 sold Friday and Saturday. Trade was slow at the opening Monday morning, and prices a little lower. Finding the supply was likely to prove short, butchers rallied before noon and bought up rapidly, nearly clearing the yards by 3 P. M. Prices averaged about 10½c. Sheep and Hogs are plenty and lower.

Philadelphia.—The Quaker City seems to be aroused at last. Stores and factories are closing, business is pretty generally suspended, and thousands of able-bodied men are addressing themselves with becoming interest and energy to the work of organizing military companies. The question is not now whether Philadelphia troops shall go to Harrisburgh, or some other remote point, to meet the enemy; but whether the enemy will not come to their own city and offer them battle on the banks of the Schuylkill. Of a necessity, then, Philadelphians are aroused, and if they will bring out even one-half of their fighting men, there should be no danger of the enemy's near approach.

But it is not in the vicinity of Philadelphia, Baltimore or New-York that a battle should be fought with any rebel army. It is a shame that so important a town as Harrisburgh is threatened by their presence. It is south of the Susquehanna that Lee should receive his order of departure, and Philadelphia will see her own dignity, interest and safety, not in throwing up breastworks at Westchester or on Fairmont, but in sending her legions to the enemy's front in the counties of York and Lancaster.

The Church and the World.—The clergymen of Philadelphia held a meeting yesterday, and offered their services to the authorities to work on the fortifications of the city. The bulls and bears of the Board of Brokers also resolved to adjourn early in the afternoon, to give members an opportunity to drill. The clergymen will, no doubt, blister their hands energetically in their first day's work, and the brokers will find drilling a rather hard task. But we rejoice to find such evidences of patriotism on all hands. We do not doubt that the preachers will fight well behind their fortifications; and, on a fair field, we would pit a regiment of Philadelphia brokers against Stonewall Jackson's brigade.

Lee's Movement a Desperate Effort.

It is settled that Lee has the great body of his army not only north of the Potomac, but on Pennsylvania soil. It is a movement of extraordinary boldness, accompanied with great risks; and yet its wisdom is so apparent that it ought to have been clearly foreseen and reasonably prevented.

The truth has been generally recognized at the North that the capture of Vicksburgh, and consequent opening of the Mississippi would, by bisecting the Confederacy, settle its fate. That truth, we happen to know, has been discovered even by the authorities in Washington. But it seems only to have made their eyes a little heavier yet, and lulled them into more serene repose. People generally understand that a desperate position prompts to desperate resorts. After it was once settled that Vicksburgh must fall, we don't see how, if there were any real thinking, military or unmilitary, about the matter at all, the conclusion could have been avoided that the rebel chiefs would attempt to retrieve their fortunes by some desperate venture in some other quarter. This ought to have been anticipated as a certainty. The rebels, after this prodigious advantage had been gained by us, would have only made their own destruction by detail inevitable if they had continued to remain on the defensive. A desperate offensive was the only possible policy that left them a chance. Of course, they adopted it. The rebels push forward for a terrible strike in the direction, of all others, where lies the chance of making good their calamities elsewhere. Their object is Washington. If they can ever secure it, it will repay them as nothing else could for the loss of the Mississippi. A Washington letter-writer states that the President being asked, a day or two since, what Lee designed doing, replied, "Show me a man who can answer the question, and I will take him right over to see Gen. Halleck." Now we have no notion of being taken to see Gen. Halleck, but that functionary may depend upon it that Lee means Washington; and, moreover, that he will get the greatest of prizes unless those whose business it is to guard it keep wider awake than they have done of late.

The rebels had not only the impending Vicksburgh calamity to stimulate them to more desperate dash, but also the fact that there never again can be so favorable an opportunity for an operation of that kind as in this interval between the depletion of our army by the expiration of the old terms of service and the new conscription. They understand perfectly well that they are far stronger now, relatively, than they can ever hope to be again. This, too, will impel them to put their energies now to the extremest strain.

The National authorities are bound to act implicitly upon the presumption that the most tremendous effort possible will be made to get possession of the National Capital, and that nothing but corresponding effort on their side will save it. Nor can they too well understand that, if Washington does fall, history will justly ascribe it to their neglect, and will visit upon them a sentence more terrible than ever fell to the lot of any American. Lee must be repelled, and, if possible, must be made to pay the penalty of his temerity. He must be checked; he ought to be annihilated.

The Duty of the Hour.

We all hope that within a few weeks Lee's army will have suffered so signal a repulse that he will be forced to retire into Virginia in such a broken, disorganized and demoralized condition, that he will be incapable of standing his ground anywhere on this side of Richmond. This is the very least that even moderate men look for. There are, doubtless, numbers of ardent and impassioned people who are quite certain that the whole force will be "bagged," and the rebellion thus brought to a sudden and ignominious close; but the great mass of the community are now sufficiently chastened by experience not to share in these "tender morning visions." The sober multitude asks but for a victory—one that will drive the invader over the frontier—and will not complain if he escape after annihilation. And we admit we think this a reasonable and proper expectation, and one which, after making every allowance for the uncertainty of war, ought to be gratified.

But then it may not be gratified. There are many reasons why we need not be greatly surprised if it should not be. The Army of the Potomac cannot, after the experience of the last two years, feel in the highest moral condition, or in the enjoyment of that through confidence in its leaders which all accounts agree in ascribing to its opponents. Moreover, a General who is suddenly called in to take the chief command after the campaign has been opened, and when the army is in the presence of the enemy, and immediate action is imperatively necessary, as Gen. Meade has been, labors under disadvantages which genius alone can counterbalance. So that it would, after all, reflect no great discredit either on him or on his troops if his début were neither brilliant or successful. In short, to speak plainly, he may be repulsed in his very first action; and it would be criminal, both in him and in us, to dismiss the idea as either an impossibility or a gross improbability.

In this event he would, doubtless, fall back on Washington, both to defend the capital and to reorganize his forces, and the future would be at once committed to the hands of the people at the North. It would devolve on us, then, to raise a fresh army, both to repel invasion, for Lee would then be master of the open country, and there would be no reason why he should not pass his conquerors into New-Jersey, and even up to New-York. Desultory vistas of "glorious" would certainly not make any serious impression on his column, though they might, if dense and obtrusive, seriously obstruct his progress, and they could not, under the same variable circumstances, prevent his doing an enormous amount of damage; so enormous, that it is no exaggeration to say that it would have at the close of the campaign to be estimated by hundreds of millions of dollars.

The obvious inference from all this is, we need hardly say, that the time to marshal our forces, to raise, equip, organize and drill the army on which the Government and the Nation may have a month hence to depend for safety, is now, and not after Meade has been defeated. Washington endangered and the whole country convulsed with panic. There is something extremely humiliating for those to whom the national dignity is as dear as the national safety, in the practice we have hitherto pursued and the fruits of which we are now witnessing in Pennsylvania, of waiting to call out the militia until our last army has been worsted, and the enemy is at the gates. To wait here in New-York singing and dancing and buying and selling, while battles are being fought only one hundred miles away, until our forces have suffered a defeat, before taking a single step to prepare a force to repair the disaster, would deserve some worse name than apathy. There would be a shortsightedness about positively barbarian. Economy as well as honor imperatively demand that we should at this moment be arming and drilling. What is done in haste and in a fright is never well done, and it is not too much to say that twenty thousand men organized now at our leisure would be worth double the number hurried into the field at a day's notice. Moreover, there is no surer way to invite Lee to continue his advance than to delay arming until his troops have been flushed by another victory in Philadelphia. He would not be frightened away by the levies we might raise in the moment of panic. We see that he would not, by the coolness with which Ewell's division continues to advance on double its number of this species of troops at Harrisburgh. The way, and the only way to render his victory, if he wins one, futile, and to turn the tide afterward, is to show him behind and beyond the force which he is now encountering 100,000 bayonets, ready to renew the fray. The militia at the North, and especially here in New-York, ought to be at once called out, armed, officered, organized and drilled, with as little interruption to business as possible, but with as much as the preparation of an efficient force for defensive operations, may render necessary. If we will depend on militia, let us at least see that there is a militia to depend on.

How to Clear the Seas of Privateers.

The adventures of the rebel privateer Tacony along the Atlantic seaboard, almost in sight of our harbors—the impunity with which she captured and burnt the numerous craft she encountered, until her victims numbered almost, if not quite, half a hundred—and finally the facility with which she was obliterated from the face of the sea, and the danger to our commerce not lessened but only transformed to another shape, to play the mad prank in Portland harbor, which was so near a complete success—must open the minds of our people to new views of the difficulties of our situation and lead to different conclusions from those hitherto prevailing as to the best mode of protecting ourselves at sea. The privateer Tacony is a recent and wholly unannounced rebel craft. The first we hear of her she springs, full armed, into the midst of the lesser craft of our coast, and plunders and burns with an audacity and prodigal destructiveness that appals our shippers and confounds the national authorities. The Navy Department makes haste to charter and dispatch a half dozen of the best vessels it can command in pursuit. Boston capital, afflicted by the privateer's ravages, offers a bounty of $10,000 for his capture. The entire seaboard, from Port Royal to Portland, is aroused, and by minute descriptions from the officers and crews of captured ships, the bold rover is so advertised that it can hardly fail that the many sail that swarm in pursuit will purge the sea of the offender. With this thought the country consoled itself for the stinging insult of the Tacony's outrages.

Vain hope! The rebel commander of the Tacony had wit equal to his audacity. He saw in the critical circumstances of his defiant cruise along our shores not embarrassment and speedy capture, but the way open to a brilliant coup which should exalt him still higher as a sea captain, and make him, perhaps, a naval hero. His trick was to burn the Tacony, transfer his men and armament to a schooner, and in this disguise elude his pursuers till he could strike at still higher game. The thing was done. The pirate ship that so many pursuers are still straining to see and hoping to capture went down beneath the waves. The schooner Archer concealed all that had made the Tacony a terror, and the Archer, innocent-looking and unsuspected, shortly dropped her anchor in Portland harbor.

What then happened the dispatches from Maine have fully told. A revenue cutter was boarded at night, her crew speedily disarmed and ironed, and the vessel towed in the darkness twelve miles out toward the sea. A few hours more would have completed the capture, and the country would have been astounded by two naval marvels and mysteries—the supposed escape of the Tacony from all pursuers, and the loss of a Government vessel from a loyal harbor, that no Confederate keel had ever plowed.

What are the conclusions that should be drawn from this brief and startling history? Is it not that from the very nature of the case the impossibility of all the series of the world combined hopelessly patrolling any large expanse of it—the readiness with which privateers may change their form and fashion of operations—no perfect defence is possible against rebel rovers? One after another of their craft may be captured, after the most gigantic expenditure, and months of persevering pursuit; but of what avail is a single success, or any number of successes, so long as a rebel Government persists in issue new patents to rovers of the sea, whose mission and whose force we are thereby forward bound to respect? With a daily increasing navy, and one which in war-making power already exceeds vastly any navy in the world, it is obvious that the country is absolutely impotent against such operations as those of the Tacony, which ship alone, between the 14th of May and 25th of June, cost our Government and people as much as a great campaign by land, and whose audacious career near culminating in an achievement as brilliant as ever gave zest to the romance of the sea. Must we not rely on the overthrow of the rebellion and the subjugation of its Government at Richmond, for the extirpation of piracy on the ocean? Is there any other way to suppress it utterly?

Democracy in Kentucky.

Some thirty citizens of Kentucky, of fair fame hitherto and of considerable personal influence, have called on Hon. Charles A. Wickliffe to become a Democratic candidate for Governor of Kentucky. What it means out West to be a "Democratic candidate," we hardly know. We would be glad to feel that it meant this only—that, though elected on grounds of avowed hostility to the Administration, as were Governors Parker and Seymour, candidates so denominated will rival these two Executives in the promptitude and vigor of their efforts, whenever called on, to furnish means to suppress the rebellion. But we fear this is not the construction to be put on the candidacy of Charles A. Wickliffe, of Kentucky. He is reported as accepting the call of his friends to be a candidate, "on the platform of the Ohio State Democracy." What that platform, is may be practically interpreted from the fact that Clement L. Vallandigham is the nominee of the Convention that framed it. Wickliffe and Vallandigham! Unhappy conjunction. The two sat near each other, all through the late Congress, and the unwented likeness that run through their votes expresses too forcibly for misconception the political identity of the two men.

Charles A. Wickliffe is a historic and no ordinary character in Kentucky and in national politics, and deserves to be saved from the obscurity and insignificance that yesterday's notice, by a well-informed cotemporary, was calculated to assign him. He is not "the son of the late Robert Wickliffe, of Lexington, commonly known as the 'old Duke,' who was for years probably the richest man and most extensive slaveholder in the State." He is not "the young Duke of a quarter of a century back, now of ripe age and the heir of most of his father's great wealth." On the contrary, Charles A. Wickliffe is a brother of the "old Duke," was old enough in 1812 to bear arms in the war; to be elected to the Legislature in 1812 and again in 1813; to be at the battle of the Thames as Aid of Gen. Caldwell; to be afterwards continuously elected to the Legislature till 1823, when he was elected to Congress, and four times reelected. On his retirement from Congress in 1833, he was again elected to the Legislature and made Speaker; in 1836 he was nominated for Lieutenant-Governor on the ticket with Daniel Clark for Governor, and elected. Gov. Clark died before his term expired, and Charles A. Wickliffe succeeded to the office, and hence acquired his title, "Gov. Wickliffe." The Wickliffe family having abandoned Mr. Clay's fortunes in 1840, and become his bitter personal enemies, John Tyler rewarded a member of it, by making Gov. Wickliffe Postmaster-General in 1841. He administered the Department with decided ability till the end of Tyler's term. Mr. Wickliffe has appeared on the National arena not often since, until he was elected to the late Congress. His record is fresh enough there to be remembered. He is not less than 75 years of age, uses crutches on account of a fall received some years since, but is otherwise hale and vigorous. He is the father of Robert L. Wickliffe, late a Governor of Louisiana, and active leader of secession in that State.

The only son of Robert Wickliffe, the renowned "Old Duke" of Lexington, Ky., who was ever known in politics, was Robert Wickliffe, Jr., known as the "Young Duke," who figured in the Whig Baltimore Convention of 1840, and was sent by John Tyler as Chargé d'Affaires to Sardinia. He died a few years after his return, and many years before his father.

Col. Thomas E. Bramlette is the Union candidate for Governor of Kentucky, and will undoubtedly be elected by a large majority. Col. Bramlette is a citizen of Clinton County, Ky., a county lying south of the Cumberland River, and on the Tennessee State line, opposite to the counties of Overton and Fentress, in Middle Tennessee—counties distinguished for Cimmerian Democracy in the past, and for unmitigated treason at the present day. Col. Bramlette being a Union man, and his county overrun from the first by the rebels in force, he has been practically an exile during the war, but fortunately for the country, all the time at home in Kentucky, doing a patriot's duty in the forum, and in the field at the head of a regiment he raised. The leading qualities of his mind are modesty, candor and courage, which, added to ability of a high order which has long marked him as a "rising man" among those who have known him well, secured him the honor of carrying through the present canvass the Union standard declined by Hon. Joshua F. Bell, the original nominee of the Kentucky Convention. Col. Bramlette is canvassing the State with energy, everywhere denouncing the wicked attempt to remove Kentucky from the Union, exhorting the people of Kentucky to be true to themselves and regardless of the Government in its struggle for the maintenance of its authority.

The Rebel Flag in the North.—It has been our boast, ever since the opening of the war, that the rebels had never gained a foothold, nor the rebel flag ever waved, in any one of the Free States of the North; that no battle had ever been fought there, and no invasion attempted. We can say this no more. Their main army is now encamped on the soil of the second State of the Union, in point of population, wealth and power. The second ally of the continent is now fortifying against their approach.

Pennsylvania, by last census, had a population of 2,906,115, and, following its established ratio of increase, it has now over three millions. This is nearly as great a population as is possessed by all the seven rebel States on this side of the Mississippi River, which may now, in a large sense, be said to be the Western military boundary of Jeff. Davis' domain. It ought to be short work for such a State as Pennsylvania alone to drive the infamous invader and the flag of abomination from its soil. And for the whole North, it ought to be shorter work still.

Sharp Generals.—The rebel Generals are purging things with a high hand in Pennsylvania. Gen. Early, who is at York, with an army of 15,000 men, has issued an order levying a contribution of $150,000, beside immense quantities of flour, beef and groceries; and he has given the town twenty-four to comply with his order. This is the first time anything of this kind has been done in the war, on either side.

If the rebels levy a contribution of $150,000 in money upon a little town like York, how much will they demand from the capital of Pennsylvania, if they get it? How much will they demand from Philadelphia? Certainly not less than a hundred millions, and six months' supplies for their army. How much would they demand from New-York? Let Wall-street figure up, and let all the commercial men and storekeepers also figure up. Copperheads cannot escape the levy. Is it not time to attend to these audacious rebel thieves?

Rebels in Clover.—We don't suppose the rebel army has ever had such fat living since it was organized, as it has at this moment. There are no more half or quarter rations for the rebels now. Beef and bread they have in profusion, while they can also enjoy such delicacies as vegetables, cheese and butter. That section of Pennsylvania where they now pasture, along the south bank of the Susquehanna River—Fulton, Franklin, Adams, Cumberland and York Counties—is rich and overflowing with everything for man and beast. The stores of the captured towns also furnish them plenty of wearing goods, together with boots and medicines, not to speak of corn whisky, the use of which by the men has been nominally interdicted. The rebels will doubtless make the best of their stay in the healthy, comfortable, rich districts of lower Pennsylvania. But we trust that Gen. Meade, Gen. Couch, and the people of the North, will see that their visit be short.

The Enrollment.—The Provost-Marshal for the Southern District, including this City, will have the military enrollment completed to-day. Some people had prophecied forcible resistance in the course of the execution of this work preliminary to the conscription. But there has been none whatever, and the citizens generally have even assisted in performing the work. In a number of the Western States there has been opposition, and we even hear of bodies of men in arms against the enrollment. But New-York has shown its patriotism and regard for law by its course.

We attribute this happy result, in great part, to the fact that the duty was put in proper hands. We venture to say that nearly all the cases of resistance throughout the country have been owing to the appointment of insolent or stupid enrolling officers.

The Two Capitals.—Gen. Lee is now maneuvering against Washington with an army a hundred thousand strong. Gen. Dix is understood to be maneuvering against Richmond with a force of twenty or thirty thousand men. The army opposing Gen. Lee undoubtedly bears a larger proportion to his than the rebel army holding Richmond bears to that menacing it. Both capitals are held to be impregnable. The rebels have made a levy en masse of the population for the crisis; the North is calling out an immense body of militia for the emergency. It looks as if the struggle now opened must have a termination which may at last fairly be called decisive.

Obituary.

—Among the names of the gallant men who fell on the 14th inst., at the second assault of the rebel works at Port Hudson, La., is that of Benjamin Franklin Denton, First Lieutenant of Company A, One Hundred and Thirty-third regiment New-York Volunteers. Lieut. Denton's death will excite a genuine sorrow in the very large number of persons in this City who knew and respected him. Prior to his entering the army he was an efficient officer of the Metropolitan Police force, having joined that organization in the dark days when party spirit ran so high between the municipal authorities, under Mayor Wood, and the friends of the law, that it showed true personal courage to take the side of the Commissioners and the right against mob violence. He was soon promoted to a sergeantcy upon his own merits, and continued faithful in that position until it was determined to organize the Metropolitan brigade. Then by the magnetic qualities of his character and his personal popularity, he drew around him large numbers of recruits until not only his own company was filled to the maximum standard, but there were men left to be distributed to other companies. With the modesty that always remarkably characterized him, he was content to accept the subordinate position of Lieutenant, in which capacity he left the City with his regiment, serving for some months in Virginia. The Metropolitan brigade was then ordered to the Banks Expedition, and Lieut. Denton, although dangerously sick, insisted upon accompanying his regiment. He recovered, however, and was able to take part in every action in which his division has been engaged, always being conspicuous for his bravery. For the last three months he had been in command of his company, the Captain being detached on Provost-Marshal duty at New-Orleans, and it was while heroically leading a storming party to the rebel intrenchments that he fell. He was born at Sullivan, N. Y., and was about 32 years of age. Col. Ellsworth, who was murdered at the Marshall House, Virginia, was his nephew.

THE AFFAIR AT PORTLAND.

The City Thrown Into a Panic by a False Alarm.

All the Crew of the Tacony in Custody.

HOW THE REBELS CAPTURED THEIR PRIZES.

All the Bonds Given to the Commander of the Tacony Recovered.

PORTLAND, Me., Monday, June 29.

The alarm this morning was occasioned by soldiers seeing two schooners below Fort Preble, acting as if they intended to make an attack.

The garrison was sent to quarters, the alarm was sounded, and the people in the surrounding villages were called out, and notice was sent over to the city that two more rebel privateers were in sight.

The rebels, however, proved to be only two fishermen, who were totally incapable of doing any harm.

It is evident that the report of the doing of rebel vessels in the Bay of Fundy sprung from the capture of the Archer by the Tacony, and the burning of the latter.

The rebels, probably in their character of Cape Cod fishermen, made reports to the fishing fleet there of the terrible doings of the privateers, in order to draw off attention from the intended raid on Portland.

It is also certain that there are no rebel privateers near on the coast, unless, perhaps, the Florida or Alabama, which is rather doubtful.

We have every man in custody who joined the Tacony, including the three from the Byzantium, so there is no truth in the reported escape on Saturday morning of a boat-load of men from the Archer.

The rebel officers state that they captured the W. A. Scholfield with a Quaker gun, made out of a spar. They ran this Quaker gun out, as if intending to fire on the Scholfield, when her captain cried out—"For God's sake, don't fire; I surrender."

The rebel officers also say several vessels might have escaped if they had not been frightened at their little howitzer.

PORTLAND, Me., Monday, June 29—9:20 A. M.

A general alarm has just aroused the whole city with wild rumor, that a gunboat is landing men below the Fort. It must of course be humbug, but two men have come over from Cape Elizabeth with the alarm.

PORTLAND, Monday, June 29—4 A. M.

The alarm was entirely false. There is no vessel in sight.

All the bonds given by the Captains of captured vessels to the commander of the pirate Tacony have been found on board of the schooner Archer, and are now in the possession of our authorities.

WHO SURRENDERED TO QUAKER GUNS.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, June 29.

Capt. MURRAY, of the Tacony, who was on board of her when she was captured by the brig Clarence, says that it was the Captain of the Kate Stewart and not of the M. A. Shindler, that surrendered to the Quaker guns of the pirate, and who cried out "For God's sake don't fire—I surrender."

Another Pirate Reported on the Coast.

PORTLAND, Me., Monday, June 29.

A dispatch from Rockland says the schooner Julia Frances, Capt. WALTON, of Friendship, reports that on Saturday morning she was boarded by a boat from a bark answering the following description: a large bark, painted black, with a poop-deck, heads of masts and ends of yards painted black, stern molding light color. They inquired for Boston papers, and said they had been on a short cruise. On being questioned as to where they were from, they answered "that Cape Sable bore north ten miles distant on Friday morning." To further questioning as to where they were bound they replied: "Boston, but they would like to be on George's Banks the next day." From the above, the Captain of the Julia Frances thought her a pirate.

The Portland Board of Trade are taking active measures relative to the coast defences. Adjutant-General HODSDON is here organizing militia to garrison Forts Georges and Scammell.

The crew of the cutter Caleb Cushing have been released, being exonerated from blame.

GEN. BUTLER.

Gen. BUTLER is here to attend the graduation exercises of his daughter's school in Georgetown.

THE VALLANDIGHAM COMMITTEE.

The Vallandigham Committee have gone home as simply as they came.

Mount Washington Collegiate Institute.

The commencement exercises incident to the Twentieth school year of the Mount Washington Collegiate Institute took place, Friday afternoon, at the marble church, Fourth-street, near Washington-square, and were attended with the most brilliant success. The exercises consisted of thirty addresses, declamations and dialogues, in English, French and German, interspersed with music, and concluded with the distribution of prizes and diplomas by the Principal, G. W. CLARKE, A. M. The whole concluded with an interesting address to the graduating class by Rev. Dr. A. D. GILMORE.

The addresses of the following young gentlemen deserve especial mention: A. C. Jackson, P. D. Wilson, David H. Valentine, Henry M. Richards, John J. Lambert and Jason H. Miller. Among the declamations we might notice those of J. M. Clarke, A. S. Isaacs, P. P. Noe and E. P. Mitchell. French dialogue and recitation were also exceedingly well done, and the efforts of the labors of the accomplished teacher of elocution, Dr. J. E. FROMENT, were apparent and gratifying. Indeed, all the young gentlemen evinced a degree of culture and mental strength rarely found in our academies and seminaries of learning.

The Principal, in closing up his report, surprised many of the people by rewards for their meritorious conduct during the past year. The prize for general excellence was awarded to A. S. ISAACS; for the best examination, to Jno. W. AITKEN; for regularity of attendance, Master SAMUEL, in the senior department, and Wm. R. Sass in the middle department, and for the best effort in improvement in penmanship, Wm. H. Shepard. Prizes were also awarded to several members of the little junior class. For excellence in French, A. C. Jackson, W. R. Wayte, Roger Samson, Paul Dyreen, Jno. W. Aitken and Frederick Gourlay received prizes.

W. R. WAYTE took the prize for superior knowledge of book-keeping.

Honors.—The first mathematical honor was awarded to Wm. R. Wayte; the second to W. J. M. Sloane. The first classical honor to W. J. Sloane; the second to John Olendorf. The first honor for English composition was awarded to John Olendorf; the second to C. M. Odell, and the third to C. E. Tilford.

Prof. CLARKE remarked in his report while speaking of the nearly twenty years connection with the Institute of his former partner, the late JAMES FARRAND, Esq., that it had educated during this period over 4,000 students, either for business or college.

The increased attendance upon this institution during the year is evidence of its continued and growing favor with the public. It is no longer an experiment whether a classical school of high rank can be sustained so far down town as Washington-square.

The following are the graduates of 1863: Henry L. Nelson, (salutatorian,) Nathan Hart, J. Wheeler Hardley, Amasa C. Jackson, J. Boardman Wilde, John J. Lambert, Jason H. Miller, Henry M. Richards, David H. Valentine, Howard Beer, (valedictorian.)

THE SIEGE OF VICKSBURG.

A Vigorous Cannonading Kept Up.

JOE JOHNSTON NOT HEARD FROM

MEMPHIS, Friday, June 26, } via CAIRO, Monday, June 29. }

Advices from GRANT's army to the noon of the 25th, say the siege was progressing vigorously. On the 20th the cannonading was kept up from morning until noon by the army and navy, but elicited no reply from the garrison. A large number of buildings were destroyed; but beyond that it is not ascertained that much damage was done.

Deserters report that the Tennessee and Georgia troops are much dissatisfied, and talk of refusing to fight any longer.

JOHNSTON's movements are still wrapped in mystery. He was last reported to be moving south. His forces are all withdrawn beyond the Big Black.

Gen. TAYLOR is said to have hung all the Federal prisoners taken at Millliken's Bend. Retaliatory measures will probably follow.

Very heavy rains in this vicinity have raised all the streams to overflowing, and very few movements on either side have been made.

JOHN PAGE, Conservative, was elected Mayor of Memphis yesterday.

WALNUT HILLS, NEAR VICKSBURGH, } Tuesday, June 23. }

The rebels in front of Gen. SHERMAN, on our left, came out of their works on Monday night, and temporarily drove our pickets from their rifle-pits; but they were driven back by our batteries.

It is thought that they are feeling their way to cut out, or to send out messengers in the melée.

There has been considerable firing along the lines to-day.

Siege guns are arriving in large quantities.

The abolitionists sent out for our wounded toward Jackson, on Sunday, have returned to the Big Black Bridge, having been turned back at Edward's Station. No rebel camps are nearer than that point.

Diseases of the Eye, Ear & Throat,
CATARRH CURED
BY
DR. VON EISENBERG.
Author of "Surgical and Practical Observations on the Diseases of the Ear, with his new Mode of Treatment."

NEW TESTIMONY.

NEW-YORK, May 6.

I was entirely deaf in my left ear, accompanied by a discharge. I placed myself under Dr. VON EISENBERG's care, who, by his great skill, restored me to perfect hearing, in the short space of a few minutes, without giving me the slightest pain, and the discharge has ceased entirely. The Eustachian Tube, which was obstructed, is quite open, and I feel that the air-passage performs its functions. I am amply satisfied, and recommend every one suffering from impaired hearing to place themselves under the treatment of this celebrated and successful physician.

THOMAS GRAHAM, No. 229 6th-av."

NEW-YORK, May 7, 1863.

I have great pleasure in testify to the skill of Dr. VON EISENBERG. I went into his office almost completely deaf, and came out with my perfect hearing. It is nearly twelve months since, and the hearing is perfect. The operation, which lasted two or three minutes in each of my ears, gave me no pain whatsoever. I, with confidence, recommend all sufferers to place themselves under Dr. VON EISENBERG's unsurpassing skill.

SAMUEL C. HUNT, No. 6 Montrose-av., Greenpoint, L. I."

NO. 180 MADISON-AV., NEW-YORK, Feb. 9, 1863.

I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a dangerous discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noise in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City, without the slightest relief.

I consulted Dr. VON EISENBERG, but scarcely dared to hope that I had got faith in his system again. I did so, however, and am happy to state that I am now, therefore, due to Dr. VON EISENBERG's skill, in possession of the knowledge which I have previously lost, to the great advantage of my reputation.

I am entirely convinced that the discharge has ceased, during his mode of treating with that complaint, and can truly state that it is not only superior, but infinitely superior, to other modes of treating the hearing, which I have tried, and which, in my opinion, certain.

JOHN TAYLOR.

NEW-YORK, July 29, 1862.

This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. VON EISENBERG removed from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with coagulated blood, relieving her instantaneously, and all without pain. It is with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.

CARROLL J. POST, No. 22 South-st.

SIGHT RESTORED.

JUNE 26, 1863.

My daughter brought me to Dr. VON EISENBERG almost completely blind in both eyes. I could not hear the pain nor the light. I am completely cured by Dr. VON EISENBERG, and called now to express my gratitude to the Doctor for his skill and unremitting attention, by which I recovered one of the most precious senses to me after being deprived of it for four years. It is only due to Dr. VON EISENBERG to state that I have tried several physicians in vain. I shall be happy to bear personal testimony to Dr. VON EISENBERG's unrivaled success to any lady or gentleman who will call on me.

HUGH GILLON, No. 18 Fulton-st., Brooklyn.

CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.
READ

NEW-YORK, March 20, 1863.

"This is to certify, that I, DR. VON EISENBERG, cured me of a severe CHRONIC CATARRH, with a dull heaviness in the head. I felt my nose completely stopped up accompanied by continual soreness of the throat, the chills creeping over me, with a most intolerable pain in the forehead, over the eyes and pain, so much so, that every one thought it was consumption. Having heard of the great cures performed by Dr. VON EISENBERG, I consulted him with but little hope of a cure. I am now happy to be enabled to add my testimonial to the great number already in the Doctor's possession, and to bear testimony to the beneficial results of treatment, as he has shown in my case that skill and knowledge which have procured for him so great a reputation. I am perfectly restored to perfect health, and I feel sincerely recommend all sufferers from CHRONIC CATARRH and SORE THROAT to apply at once to Dr. VON EISENBERG with a certainty of being cured."

FIRST MORTGAGE SINKING FUND BONDS.

The Lake Erie and Pacific Railroad Company, in the State of Indiana, now offer for sale their entire issue of $400,000 First, and only Mortgage Bonds, bearing seven per cent. interest, payable semi-annually in gold. These bonds are secured by a DEED OF TRUST, constituting the FIRST and ONLY lien upon the entire Road, its franchises, appurtenances, rolling stock, &c.

Its route is along the White Water Valley, from Rushville to Union, a distance of about sixty miles, and passes through the richest, best cultivated and most densely populated portion of the State of Indiana.

The road is the CENTRAL SECTION of the otherwise completed TRUNK LINE, connecting the great Southwest at LOUISVILLE, Ky., on the Ohio River, and at an early day with TOLEDO and SANDUSKY, on Lake Erie.

The Company is wholly without debt (except its bonded debt) and being strong in its local traffic, and connecting with roads that must necessarily largely increase the volume of its revenues, the BOARD OF DIRECTORS, with great confidence, invite the attention of capitalists to these securities, believing that they offer an opportunity for a first-class railroad investment, than which, in their judgment, there is no better to be had.

The published exhibits of the Company, together with a map showing the locality and advantages of the Road, can be had from either of the Trustees of the Deed of Trust, in this City, named below, and from either of whom the bonds are only to be had.

THE REBEL INVASION.

this city—a company comprising one hundred of the first citizens of the place—waited on Gen. Couch to-night, and tendered their services for the emergency. The General declined to accept them unless in behalf of the United States Government, when the delegation visited Gov. Curtin, made the same proposition to him, and were told they would be accepted on the terms of his last call. They will be held for special service to guard one of the fords on the river.

The rebel Gen. Ewell will unquestionably give special attention to the destruction of the Northern Central Railroad, which route he is thoroughly acquainted with, having been for a long period connected with it as civil engineer. WHIT.

Harrisburgh Waked up at Least—The City Almost Surrounded by the Rebels—Lee's Movements and Intentions—The Pennsylvania State Government Gone to Philadelphia.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28, 1863.

The city is at last waked up. Notwithstanding the telegrams that come from Washington that Harrisburgh is in no danger, the population within it is, and are flocking to arms with a good will. We are surrounded on all sides. To the north the rebels occupy Duncannon, the point where the Pennsylvania Railroad crosses the Juniata, and the junction of that river with the Susquehanna. They will undoubtedly destroy the bridge at that point. This will cut off communication with the West. They have also cut the Northern Central Railroad at York, and burned several bridges on this side of that place. That cuts off communication between Baltimore and the rest of mankind, except by way of Philadelphia. They were foiled in their attempt to cross the river at York by the burning of the bridge. But so far as Harrisburgh is concerned, they have completely surrounded it.

Lee is proceeding on the Napoleonic principle—scatter your army to subsist and concentrate to fight. His troops are spread over the whole of the lower part of Pennsylvania, and are living off the fat of the land. But they can be concentrated at any given point in two or three days, and be ready for a great battle. In this country such a policy is wise and might be successful, for the country is rich and densely populated. But in the South our army has to support itself, and keep up communication with its base of operations. This is a disadvantage on our side that is not generally considered. I am becoming stronger in the opinion I formed at first that Lee intends to occupy this country, and work from some base in Pennsylvania—in short, that he is organizing a grand invasion of the North. The slowness and caution of his movements, the fearlessness of his advance, the plan he has adopted of striking at all the railroad communications, and the apparent concentration on Harrisburgh, all lead me to believe that he is intending to fight the Summer campaign on Northern soil.

There are various indications which favor this supposition. In the first place the rebel General probably knows as well as we do of the existence of a party in opposition to the Government, whose political prejudices will carry them even to the verge of treason. He knows as well as we do that a political issue has been made on the question of the enrollment law. He knows as well as we do that the violent and unscrupulous opposition to the Administration and to the prosecution of the war, has weakened the confidence of the people in the Government. If proof of this were needed, it is found in the listlessness and apathy of the people in the insults offered to the soldiers, calling the New-York troops "German hirelings," and hooting them as they pass; in the information afforded to the rebels as they pass through the country by traitors who style themselves Peace Democrats; and by a hundred other indications, trivial but significant. This state of things has been well known to the Confederate leaders, and they have calculated on it. Those who have allowed their passion to supersede their patriotism, and who have occupied themselves with finding fault rather than with lending their energies to the support and encouragement of the Government, have, perhaps, done more harm than they are aware of.

The latest news you will have received a day before this letter reaches you. I must not repeat it. There is no doubt that we are surrounded by the enemy, and that the real point of attack must soon be developed. Great preparations have been made to receive them, and I have no fear that they will be able to cross the river at this point. What they may accomplish at the fords above, I do not know, but I doubt if they could get artillery across if they wanted to. If they occupy Harrisburgh it will be only for the sake of having to say that they have captured the Capital of Pennsylvania, for I cannot believe they will dare to bring a large force on this side of the Susquehanna.

The State officers of Pennsylvania leave to-night for Philadelphia, which will be constituted the seat of Government. Gov. CURTIN alone remained, and he will stay as long as he can.

NEWSPAPER REPORTS.

REPORTS FROM FREDERICK.

Correspondence of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

FREDERICK, Md., Sunday, June 28, 1863—Noon.

Information was received here late yesterday afternoon, by the arrival of two stages with passengers from Hagerstown, that Gens. Lee and Longstreet were both at Hagerstown yesterday morning. They took breakfast at a farm-house one mile from the town, and afterwards passed through toward Chambersburgh, attended by their Staff officers and a small guard.

The passengers state that there were few or no rebel troops in Hagerstown when the stages left at six o'clock in the morning. The last of the rear guard of Lee's army had passed through a little after daylight, toward Chambersburgh, leaving only a few stragglers in town. When the stage passed through Boonsboro no rebel troops were there.

Longstreet's and Hill's corps passed through Hagerstown. They commenced to go through on Sunday last, and a constant stream of men, horses, artillery and baggage wagons has been passing ever since, and upwards of Saturday morning. The number of Longstreet's corps is estimated at thirty thousand men. They are represented to be well clothed, and much better than the citizens expected to see, were well armed, and in an excellent state of discipline. They marched in close order, and were kept well in hand by their officers, who permitted no straggling.

The corps of Gen. Ewell marched through Boonsboro and Hagerstown, by way of the Cave Town Road. At first it was supposed this corps intended to operate in the vicinity of Gettysburgh and York; but on marching in that direction some ten or fifteen miles it changed its course, and proceeded toward Chambersburgh, indicating a concentration of the whole army, as Hill and Longstreet's corps also took the same route in their advance toward Chambersburgh. The average strength of the three corps, Ewell's, Longstreet's and Hill's, is estimated at about 25,000 each, or 75,000 in all. This estimate was made by persons who subsequently counted them as they passed. The number passing in an hour's time averaged one corps. Others, with equal opportunities for judging, estimate the aggregate number of rebels at 80,000, or 40,000 for the whole.

Longstreet from Hagerstown's corps came in to-day, and Longstreet's whole corps crossed at Williamsport, and marched direct to Hagerstown. It is reported that A. P. Hill's corps had gone to Chambersburgh, and the whole rebel army, except Ewell's corps, which acted as the rear guard, was now fairly on the road, bound for Pennsylvania.

The rebels have evidently concentrated at this place, and are confirmed in the belief by our scouts, who have been down the Potomac as far as Point of Rocks, that no other corps than those named have crossed the river. Longstreet's and Hill's corps had gone to Hagerstown, and marched direct to Hagerstown. It is reported that A. P. Hill's corps had gone to Chambersburgh, and the whole rebel army, except Ewell's corps, which acted as the rear guard, was now fairly on the road, bound for Pennsylvania.

Longstreet from Hagerstown's corps came in to-day, and Longstreet's whole corps crossed at Williamsport
